Vet Notes (please call if you have any concerns or questions): _____

Massage is not a substitute for veterinarian care, diagnosis or treatment, a safe home environment or a loving family. Animal owners should consult their veterinarian regularly, including in regard to any symptoms that may require diagnosis or treatment.

Massage therapy is a very useful measure for all animals as it provides relief to fatigued muscles while helping to prevent future injury and damage. Conditions such as acute muscle injury are benefited by massage therapy in addition to medical therapy. Massage does not replace veterinary care; if you are in doubt about a medical condition please consult your veterinarian. I am always willing to be present during a veterinary consult to work out plan to get your pet back in the best physical condition possible.

If you have any questions about my services or any other questions please contact me at 813.421.3152.
